

Your Rights as a Counselling Client

You have the right to receive a quality counselling service

- I am a member of the BACP and am bound by their Ethical Framework. This defines the nature of the relationship between the counsellor and client and the boundaries regarding this.
- I receive regular supervision (this is standard good practise for all counsellors). I will discuss counselling sessions with my supervisor to ensure that I am providing the best possible service. These discussions remain anonymous wherever possible and the supervisor is bound by the same confidentiality that I am.
- If reached, every sixth session also forms a review: this is to check how things are going and that we are addressing the issues you are wanting to address.
- Sessions usually last 50 minutes. If you are late for a session, I will not see you beyond the time that was originally booked but the full session will still be charged. For missed sessions or cancellations please see the Fees section below.
- Sessions are usually held on a weekly basis.

You have the right to confidentiality

- What you share will remain confidential; however, there are certain limitations to this. Your counsellor will only break confidentiality when you share that you or someone else is at risk of serious harm. We will always discuss this with you first when possible.
- In other rare circumstances, your counsellor may be compelled to give evidence in court or produce notes for other professionals. This will only be done if required by law.
- We keep notes for five years in accordance with the Data Protection Act (1998). Notes are stored with contact details separately.
- These are your notes and you can ask for access to them in writing at any time.

Fees

- Sessions are charged at £42. (There are a few subsidised sessions for students and those on income related benefits – please ask for more information).
- If you need to cancel your appointment, you must give at least 24hours notice otherwise the full fee will be charged.
- Please contact me on 07901 218 165 or newcastlecounselling@yahoo.co.uk.
- Charges are subject to regular review. Any changes in charges will be given with one month's notice.

Contact

- I can be contacted on 07901 285 165 or newcastlecounselling@yahoo.co.uk. Please be aware that this phone is checked irregularly through the day and not always manned. You can leave a message and I will return your call when I can.
- If you are in distress and cannot get hold of me as soon as you would like then please take responsibility for yourself and contact someone you feel appropriate.
